Only two of the four American League games scheduled were played yesterday, rain preventing the contests of the Browns in Philadelphia and the Tigers in Washington. The Highlanders made it two out of three by edging out the White Sox, and the naughty Red Sox were tumbled by the Naps. It was a tough day for history of any color.

A timely two base hit by Guy Zinn sent two runs across the plate in the eighth inning yesterday and enabled the Highlanders to subdue the Chicago White Sox to the tune of 4 to 3. No more exciting ball game has been played at the Hilltop this year. Zinn's sound hit, a strenuous kick by Callahan and his followers over a close decision at the plate, which seemed to be justly rendered in the final inning.

Big Ed Walsh and Long George McConnell were the rival pitchers and both worked like beavers. It wasn't exactly a pitchers' battle, for at times each boxer was hit freely, but it must be admitted that with clean support Walsh would have excelled in effectiveness. The Highlanders played errorless ball behind McConnell, which helped him in several tight places.

While Zinn's two bagger was a winner, Hal Chase was a potent factor in the success of the New Yorks. Chase rapped out four safe hits in as many times, but his hot single in the eighth inning being one of the rollers that were placed under Walsh. Chase's fielding was immense. He took part in two rattling double plays, his greatest achievement was the holding of a ball to third base for a force, thereby killing a sacrifice after picking the ball up almost in front of the home plate. Prince Hightower also saved Simmons from making a costly error when he scooped up a low throw with two men on base.

Rath scored a run for the Sox in the first inning. He received a base hit and ran all the way home on Zeller's two bagger to left, which was slowly handled. The Hillmen tied the score in the second inning. Zinn's single, a single and Simmons got a lift on Weaver's poor throw. Hartzell followed with a burning base hit to center and Zinn counted. Simmons reached third, but after Martin's throw he was caught on the way home on Sweeney's tap to Walsh.

Daniels put New York one ahead in the third inning. He shot a base hit to left and hustled to the plate when Lord threw Chase's infield hit past Zeller to the right field seats. Chase sprinted to third on this error and was tied to Rath. Weaver made a brilliant stop. Zinn's hot grounder and three Chase caught at the plate, after which Zinn was caught spalling.

In the fourth inning the Sox evened the score. Lord walked and Callahan put him on third with a sharp base hit to right. Lord ran home on Bodie's sacrifice fly to Zinn and Weaver's single landed Callahan on the middle base. Sullivan grounded to Martin and was retired at first. Chase shooting the leather to Sweeney in time to double Callahan at the plate.

The Chicagoans were settled in the fifth inning in a way that made the 5,000 fans cheer. Walsh received a pass as a starter and Rath beat out a bunt. Zeller also hit a bunt, dropping within two yards of the plate. Chase was right on top of the play and scooping the pill almost out of Sweeney's hands he made a fair throw to Hartzell, forcing Walsh. Callahan fled to Daniels and Lord hammered a grounder near second base. Simmons made a great stop, but he threw the ball low to Chase, who gathered the grounder across the plate. Zinn and two base runners were left.

A smashing double play by Martin, Simmons and Chase killed off the Sox in the seventh inning, but in the eighth Callahan's crew closed in with a rally that was the result of Zeller's single, steal, Collins's sacrifice and Callahan's corking base hit to center. The crowd expected a defeat after that because Walsh had been pitching in the last half.

Wild routine, however, greeted a pass to Daniels as a starter in New York's half. Playing the hit and run game to perfection, Chase belted his grounder safe hit to center just as Daniels started a steal, so that the latter pulled up at third in safety. Sterrett fanned and Callahan went word to Walsh to walk Zinn. The first ball Walsh delivered was over a corner of the plate and Zinn dropped it in short left field, near the foul line. Daniels and Chase, the latter having reached second on a short passed ball, promptly scooped across the plate. Zinn took two bases on his drive, but he was caught off second on Simmons's hard grounder to Lord. Then Hartzell grounded to Zeller and the score was 4 to 3.

With one down in the ninth inning, Weaver got in a terrific smash to second, right center. He raced around the bases at a furious clip and Callahan told him to go home. The ball was relayed by Sterrett to McConnell, who made a quick throw to Sweeney, and Weaver was touched just as he slid for the rubber.

"You're out!" cried Chief Umpire Egan. "What, me?" shrieked Weaver, jumping up and grabbing Egan by the shoulder. "Hobbs!" howled Callahan, rushing up with all the Sox at his heels. Weaver, with no cap, turned to Sweeney. "Wasn't I safe?" he asked the big New York catcher, who took off his mask and grinned. Egan finally took a hand in the game and threatened the things of the Chicagoans didn't shut up. So Cal.

CINCINNATI, July 24.—The Giants cleaned up the series with the Reds by taking today's game by a score of 3 to 1. It was a ten inning affair, closely fought, but loosely and poorly played. Polishers were frequent, but the Giants produced the ball more often.

Pinch hitter McCormick distinguished himself with a timely two bagger in the tenth. The Reds biffed Willie in the tenth and were in a fair way to score again when McCormick, a pretty gag, of McClellan's foul for the third out. In order to make their train for the East the Giants had to dress on the run.

MOTORCYCLISTS ON STRIKE.

But They Fail to Spoil the Show, for Quakers Fill the Breach.

Exciting finishes in practically all the races featured United Cyclists night at the Brighton Beach Stadium Motordrome last night, and a strike of the native New York motorcyclists, whose demands were not acceded to by the management, provided added interest.

The five mile professional race was made up of four flyers from Philadelphia, whom Ray Thomas led home in all three heats. A Canadian, Alphonse Barriere, and four riders from New York—Cox, Costello, Mercer and Wray—were to have entered this race, but the Canadian was not partial to the track and the New Yorkers struck for higher prizes, so they had threatened to do last night. So the management hastily imported the racers from Quakertown, to avoid disappointing their patrons.

Arthur Chapple again covered himself with glory by hanging up new records at three distances. Two of the new marks were made in a three mile exhibition, when he covered his first mile in 39 seconds, and the whole distance in 1 minute 59 1/5 seconds. The best previous figures across the five mile mark were 1:13.4, made by himself on Tuesday night, and the former record for three miles was 2 minutes 1 second, made by A. Seymour this spring at Chicago.

The first fast time Chapple established in winning the eight mile professional race, finishing in 5 minutes 30 1/5 seconds. This displaces the old record for eight miles on a three lap track, but is several seconds behind the best time for a one mile track. Chapple went out for preliminary position from the start, soon cutting down the one lap advantage of Thomas, the speedy Philadelphian, and leading him across the finish by over a lap.

The newcomers gave a good account of themselves, especially Thomas. He ran away with the first two trials, beating Chapple by a margin of 1/2 lap. In the final trial, however, Chapple hung to him during most of the race, alternating in the lead with him. Then, after they had lapped Vandenberg at three miles, Thomas went to the fore with a second lap, and was never headed, winning by a quarter of a lap.

About 1,000 persons on bicycles, motorcycles and automobiles formed a procession to the stadium, where they received free admission. The parade was under the auspices of the United Cyclists, and started from the fountain on Bedford avenue at 7 o'clock. About 100 women paraded, clad in full motorcycle costumes.

The summaries:
Three Mile Exhibition—Arthur Chapple, 39.1; Mercer, 39.2; Wray, 39.3; Cox, 39.4; Barriere, 39.5.
Five Mile Professional Race—First Heat—Wray, 1:13.4; Mercer, 1:13.5; Chapple, 1:13.6; Thomas, 1:13.7; Barriere, 1:13.8.

MEADOW BROOKS MEET AN UNEXPECTED REVERSE

Playing on Even Terms, They

Troopers Nervous at Start, but Opponents Fail to Take Advantage.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., July 24.—At the Point Judith Country Club today the winners in the low goal series for the Overture cups were the Army and Navy. The Army team, led by Capt. J. H. Mawr, second team, had an easy victory in the Watch Hill coupe, the high class Cooperstown and Bryn Mawr teams met on even terms, but it resulted in an unexpectedly unexpected contest. Cooperstown defeating the present juniors champions by 11 to 3 1/2 goals.

The Army players were in charge of soldiers in khaki, but there was nothing in the equipment of the team to suggest that they were soldiers. They were not accustomed to playing on so fast turf at Point Judith, but they showed facility, especially in supporting play. At the start the
